Presenting....

Stephanie Cohen, “The Perennial Diva”

This well-known author, speaker, and gardening expert has taught herbaceous plants and perennial design at Temple University for more than 20 years and is the former Founder and Director of the Landscape Arboretum at Temple University.

Judy Semroc, Conservation Specialist

A photographic journey into the connection between the importance of land conservation & human use, and what it means to species & habitat diversity, non-native & invasive species and the future of how all of this makes a difference.

Lorree Cummings, Stone Cottage Farm & Garden

A journey of restoring the small family homestead where she grew up, demonstrating practical and enjoyable methods of urban farming. Raised-bed organic gardening, backyard chickens, beekeeping and food preservation will be some of the topics covered in her presentation.

All who enjoy gardening are welcome to attend.
